

lar fricative, to make the sound, is similar to make a k sound where the toung presses into the velar position, but instead it is merely near the velar position, allowing the air to pass without being stopped. In English it is the 'ch' is 'loch' of Scottish English, a strong 'h' like sound.

The vowels for English readers I'll explain here:

- i – this is the closed front unrounded vowel. In English "eee".
- a – this the open central unrounded vowel. In English "ah".
- u – this is the back closed rounded vowel. In English "oo" as in "moo".
- o – this is close mid rounded vowel. In English "oh".
- 6 – this is the scwha or mid central unrounded vowel. In English "uh".

There are also two tones:

- 7 – this is a high pitch tone
- 2 – this a low pitch tone

unmarked words are in medium tone.

2.1 Prosody

The prosodic cadence is indicated through loudness, with primary stress on initial syllable of a word, with secondary stress on every odd syllable thereafter.

3 Grammar

3.1 Word Order

The Pyash Word order is subject-object-verb (SOV) with postpositions which is the same word order that is most natural for homo-sapiens, as exemplified by various deaf groups that made up their own sign language using SOV, and many of the oldest human languages using SOV. Indo-Aryan, Turkic, Japanese, Astro-Asiatic, and a majority of indigenous langauges all use SOV word order.

Subject-Verb-Object (SVO) as in English, and other word orders are typically the result of language atrophy, where the case markings are lost, and people are relegated to using adjectives which turn into prepositions or prefixes. While certainly SVO languages are still usable, they are however less optimal in terms of homo-sapien brain cohesion, so the SOV word order was used for Pyash.

In order to reduce the risk of atrophy, the verb is always at the final location.

Here is some examples of the word order in Pyash:

noun	phrase	verb	phrase
adjective	noun	adverb	verb
stem	number	gender	context	case
mood		stem	tense	aspect

3.2 Grammatical Mood

Grammatical mood tells a person if the sentence is declaring a fact, a possibility, a command, a question or otherwise.

The basic grammatical moods are:

- li – realis mood, for declaring a fact. In some ways it is similar to a period. For example: pyanli "love..".
- tu – deontic mood, for expressing a command. For example: pyantu "love!".
- si – epistemic mood, for expressing a possibility. For example: pyansi "may love..".
- psi – optatative mood, for expressing a request. For example: pyanpsi "please love..".
- ri – interrogative mood, for expressing. For example: pyanri "love?"

3.3 Pronouns

Pronouns are for indicating a person. The basic pronouns are:

- mi – me/I. For example: mi pyanli "I love..".
- sa – you/thee. For example: sa pyanli "You love..".
- ya – it. For example: ya pyanli "It love..".
- ke – question word, who/what/where/when depending on context. ke pyanri "what love?"

3.4 Grammatical Cases

Grammatical cases are for indicating how a noun phrase is related to the verb phrase. Brief history of cases, is that in human languages cases used to be verbs or adjectives which became abbreviated over time allowing for more complicated sentences.

The basic cases are

- na – which is the nominative case or subject. For example: mina pyanli "I love..".
- ka – which is the accusative case or object. For example: saka pyanli "You be loved..".
- ti – which is the genitive case, like "of", or "'s". For example: milti pyanka "my love".

An example that uses both: mina saka pyanli "I love you..".

Lets add several more stems to work with.

- kwan – light
- kwin – give
- tlan – God
- cyit – heart

3.4.1 Motion

- so – source, roughly "from". mina tlanso li "I am from God..".
- te – location, roughly "at". mina kwante li "I am at light..".
- ga – way, through, roughly "via". cyitga pyanli "via heart be love..".
- ma – destination, roughly "to". For example: tianna sama pyanka kwinli "God, to you, love, gives..".

3.4.2 Context

Cases can also be used to express relationship within several deixis or contexts, we will cover some of the most common.

Lets add a couple more words

- tlap – floor
- hrat – roof

- ce – under context, "under". For example: mina hratce li "I be under roof..".
- nu – interior context, "in". For example: sana cyitnu keka ri "you, in heart, what?".
- pi – surface context, "on". For example: mina tiappi li "I be on floor..".
- se – time context, indicating something in time. For example: kese pyanri "when love?".
- to – space context, indicating someting in space. For example: keto kwanri "where light?".
- pa – person context, indicating a space/time or time/space person or event. For example: kepa pyanri "Who be love?"

contexts and cases can also be combined. as a general rule, start with the context, end with the case.

Lets add another couple words:

- hkin – go
